

JOSEPH CHAMBERLAIN IS DEAD IN LONDON

BRITISH STATESMAN, ADVOCATE OF IMPERIALISM AND TARIFF REFORM, EXPIRES.

ENDS STORMY CAREER

Spent Nearly Forty Years in the Thick
of British Political Affairs—Stricken With Paralysis
in 1906.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
London, July 3.—Joseph Chamberlain died here last night. His death, which removes one of the striking figures of British politics in the past generation, came as an entire surprise, as the condition of his health to the public was not known to be any worse than at any time in the past two or three years.

Chamberlain, who never left his husband's side since he was stricken with paralysis seven years ago, and his son, Arthur, who with Mr. Chamberlain when his death occurred at 10:30 o'clock last night at their London residence. The event passed gloom over the London season which was at its height.

Mr. Chamberlain's appearance was at a garden party on the grounds of his Birmingham home, May 6th, last, when with his wife and son, he received several hundred constituents. Mr. Chamberlain was wheeled out on the lawn in his chair, and very emaciated and feeble when he lifted his hat to friends and neighbors in acknowledgment of their salutes.

Tariff Reform Pioneer.
The Right Honorable Joseph Chamberlain was the pioneer in Great Britain of tariff reform, and the great advocate of imperialism. For thirty-eight years, with a brief interregnum, he represented Birmingham in parliament. His career of stormy activities was ended by a stroke of paralysis. The blow fell when he was in the midst of a strenuous campaign for the establishment of a protective tariff with preference for the British colonies and just after his constituents had celebrated the thirtieth anniversary of his first election.

Since that day the strong fighter had been an invalid, a pathetic looker at the political game, pictures always with his loyal wife, a daughter of W. C. Cresswell of Massachusetts, who was President Cleveland's secretary of war, beside him. His chief consolation was the growing political prominence of his son, Arthur Chamberlain, and the loyalty of his constituents. Birmingham would not dispose of her leader, although he was no longer able to represent her upon the floor of the house of commons. In 1906, when he was returned to his old seat, and appeared afterward in the house but once, where amid respectful silence, he made his way to the speaker's desk on the arm of his son and today the chamberlain died at his home at 1913, Mr. Chamberlain wrote to his constituents, resigning his seat, and saying: "I cannot hope again to do my work in parliament, and I feel that our city and our country need the services of a younger man."

Gladstone's Opponent.
While his greatest claim to fame was his determined and brilliant advocacy for Great Britain, the citadel of Free Trade, he will also be remembered as the bitterest and most successful opponent of Gladstone in that statesman's efforts to make Home Rule for Ireland as one of the terms of the Liberal-Unionist party; and as the Minister whose policy in South Africa involved his country in the greatest war it had experienced since the Crimean conflict, but which ended in the triumph of republics and made South Africa "all red."

From the day he left University College, London, to enter his father's law firm, he devoted his life to the cause of "the principle of constructive reform." It was in 1868, just 32 years after his birth in London, that he received his baptism of public life, as the "councilor of Birmingham," later serving as mayor for successive terms. He gave his whole time to the cause of municipal reform, and what had been previously one of the worst governed cities in England, became a model for municipal reform.

MUNDAY MADE ATTEMPT TO AVERT BANK CRASH

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, July 3.—That C. B. Munday, vice president of the La Salle National bank, was making desperate efforts to avert the crash which overtook the bank three weeks ago, was shown in an intervening petition filed in court today in behalf of Joseph Munday.

Three days before the bank closed Munday alleges that Munday wrote the state that owing to newspaper criticism he desired to build up a fund to take up two notes as the bank was about to fail. Mr. Munday is alleged to have asked the bank to take up two notes as the bank was about to fail. Mr. Munday is alleged to have asked the bank to take up two notes as the bank was about to fail.

SEARCH RESIDENCE FOR DEATH WEAPON

Unable to Find Tracable Clues in Freepoint Murder Case After Thorough Search.

Freepoint, N. Y., July 3.—Search on the grounds of the Carman home, which extended even to an examination of wells, has failed to reveal the weapon with which Mrs. Louise E. Bailey of Hempstead, was murdered on Tuesday night, while preparing to leave the office of Dr. Edwin Carman. Policemen with lanterns last night went over every foot of ground about the Carman home. The scene attracted a large crowd of villagers.

Louis Smith, district attorney, announced today that he had found two men, both negroes, who declared they had seen a man run away from the window of Dr. Carman's office, through which the shot was fired that killed Mrs. Bailey.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Yorkville, Ill., July 3.—A dramatic story of a fight to death in the dark early today with a masked robber, who invaded their home, was told here today by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Grimwood, an old couple who lived on a farm two miles east of here.

The robber died as she was throttling him, Mrs. Grimwood said, after he had been thrown to the floor by her husband. She is a large and powerful woman, although sixty-five years old.

Before Mrs. Grimwood got into the fight, her husband and the robber, the farmer armed with a club and the woman armed with an ice pick, circled about in the dark in the bedroom striking at each other. The farmer struck the robber several times, and in turn was struck with the ice pick. Finally Mr. Grimwood hit the robber over the head with the ice pick.

LA FOLLETTE FOUNDS A NEW BILL FACTORY

Succeeds in Establishing a Legislative Reference Library for Congress
Similar to Wisconsin One.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., July 3.—The establishment of a legislative reference library for the use of congress, similar to the one used by the Wisconsin legislature, is about to be established through the efforts of Senator La Follette. In a signed statement in his magazine today he declares that the "storehouse of information on subjects of legislation in the congressional library" will now "come available for a usable purpose."

At last the congress of the United States has been awakened to its need for a similar service to enable it to perform intelligently the work of formulating legislation, intended to solve the nation's economic, social and political problems. Senator La Follette says the bill factory he has offered an amendment appropriating $25,000 for this purpose, that the conference committee voted against it, but that following the amendment was adopted by the house, 141 to 94. He then shows how information is in the library of congress of all important subjects, but is scarcely accessible, because of the present arrangement.

At great cost the accumulated wisdom and experience of all civilized governments have been assembled here, and here session after session it lies untouched. "It is," continues the senator, "inexpensive, classified, brief, ready for the industrial legislator, it will enable congress to profit by the trials, experiments and approved judgments of all other nations. It will make the business of law-making more efficient, more exact, more economical and scientific."

FORE!

How joyous are these long July days to the heart of the golf player. It is always fair weather on the links—the lure of the little sphere is irresistible. Your true golfer takes as much delight in his equipment as a "real angler" does in his tackle. Clubs and balls are objects with a distinct character. He wants the things that are "just right"—"specially so" won't do. And, of course, he seeks a sure guide to the stores of responsibility. And that makes it our turn to whisper the advertising columns of The Gazette are ever at your service. They are first aids to good golfing.

WILSON PETITIONS CONGRESS TO HELP SALEM'S DESTITUTE

Sends Special Message Asking Emergency Appropriation of $200,000
for Massachusetts
City.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, July 3.—President Wilson sent a special message to congress today urging the immediate appropriation of $200,000 for the relief of those made homeless and destitute in the Salem fire. He enclosed a telegram from Governor Walsh saying that 3,900 families were in need. The message was as follows: "The governor of Massachusetts has sent me the following telegram: 'The Salem fund is increasing slowly. The expense of rehabilitation will be enormous. At least three thousand families are homeless and without work. If the national government could appropriate $200,000 it would assist greatly. I am informed that the action of the national government at the time of the San Francisco disaster furnished a precedent. Can anything in the way of a substantial contribution from the national government be obtained?'"

In view of the great number of homeless and destitute in Salem, I earnestly urge the immediate appropriation by congress of $200,000, as reported by the governor, for the expenses under the direction of the secretary of war," wrote the president. The message was referred to the house appropriation committee, which will take it up before early next week at the latest.

BIG SUFFRAGE RALLY AT MRS. BELMONT'S HOME

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Newport, R. I., July 3.—Suffragists today invaded the heretofore inviolable ramparts of Newport, the summer place of America's multi-millionaires. At the invitation of Mrs. Belmont, a large number of suffragists gathered today at "Marble House," the palace home of the New York traction magnate, to discuss their efforts in supporting a suffrage measure in congress. Suffrage leaders have been widely divided over the respective merits of the Senator Smith and Senator Brewster measures now before congress. It was to effect a compromise on these two measures that the meeting was called today.

EDUCATORS AT ST. PAUL FOR ANNUAL CONVENTION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
St. Paul, July 3.—School teachers, college professors, county superintendents and presidents of universities from every state in the union gathered at the auditorium here this morning at the opening of the fifty-second annual convention of the National Educational Association. Joseph Swain, president of the N. E. A., and an alumnus of the University of Wisconsin, delivered the address of welcome to Governor A. O. Eberhart. President Swain talked on "The Relation of the Teacher to American Citizenship." An international aspect was given the convention at the morning's session by Professor Sidney Lewis Gulick of the Imperial University of Kioto, Japan, who spoke on "The Responsibility of American Educators in the Solution of America's Oriental Problem." The question of teachers' salaries will be taken up tonight. George C. Stricker of Brooklyn will deliver an address demanding that teacher's salaries be based upon position and not the sex of the incumbent.

LIGHT AND POWER PLANT ACCEPTS LAW PROVISIONS

AMERICAN DELEGATES RETURN TO CAPITAL

Confer With Wilson and Bryan Today
on Present Status of Mexican Peace Situation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Washington, July 3.—The American delegates to the Niagara mediation conference, Justice Lamar and Frederick W. Lehman returned to the capital today and conferred with President Wilson and Secretary Bryan. The American delegates will remain in Washington during the recess awaiting Carranza's canvass of his generals under the plan of Guadalupe, as to sending delegates to treat with the Huerta emigration. The three South American mediators will also return here shortly and keep in touch with the situation awaiting the next move.

Eduardo Calderon, one of the constitutionalist leaders, expected to represent Carranza if he sends delegates, declared today he did not believe the canvass of the constitutionalist chief would induce Carranza to treat with Huerta unless they went to discuss terms of surrender.

THOUSANDS OF VISITORS WILL BE ENTERTAINED IF WEATHER IS PROPITIOUS.

BIG NONESUCH CIRCUS

Big Exclusive Feature Will Be Important
Drawing Card in City's Bare But Merry Fourth.

With flags waving, early guests arriving, and with a thousand and one last minute preparations being made for the biggest July Fourth celebration in Janesville's history, the city was on edge with activity and anticipation today. While merchants were experiencing unusually heavy trade and were busy supplying the demand for holiday apparel, restaurant owners and hotel men were preparing to look after the meals for the thousands of persons who will be attracted here for the big doings. Not the least busy persons in the city were the members of the celebration committee who held a last meeting at four o'clock this afternoon in order to go over the program that there may be no hitch in the day's festivities.

Indications point to a fine weather. The fact that the weather man was in a propitious mood brought smiles to many a face today and conditions seemed ideal. Old Sol will be almost welcome visitor tomorrow, and, with the rest, is urged to come early and stay late.

CARDINALS TO PLAY BELOIT VAN COLTS

White Sox Meet Black Hawk at Driving Park Diamonds Sunday. Cards Play at Beloit.

On Sunday if the members of the Janesville Cardinals and White Sox survive the rigors of the fourth of July celebration and not get too liberal with the use of fire crackers injuring their batting eyes, the two nines will compete in the national pastime Sunday.

The Cards journey to Beloit to go to the mat with their ancient and respected rival the Van Colts. A spirited battle will probably result in this clash as both aggregations are considered of equal strength. Crandall will do the heavy lifting for the Cards and the Colts will have to do some tall climbing to stow away a victory off him.

At the driving park diamonds the White Sox and the Black Hawk nine will struggle for supremacy. The Black Hawk squad put one over the Sox in their first game and the white hosed nine are out for blood. Since Dr. Connell has returned from studying the human anatomy at Marquette, the Sox are well in the pitching department.

Bob Wilson will do the back-stopping and the Sox declare they will copy the honors. The Black Hawk have declared the Sox will have another guess coming as Fleming with his mile a minute delivery will be king of the rubber. The contest should afford plenty of pastime to local fans and a good crowd is expected at the game.

If you would spend your money judiciously—keep your eyes on the bargains the merchants are offering in these columns.

Joe Birmingham says that Branch Rickey has a better pitching staff with his Browns than any other team in the American league. Which, considering the pitching class that can be found in the A. L., is some boost. Where do you find three better southpaws than Hamilton, Levern and Weisman? asks Joe. "Look about a bit and you'll see I'm right. And Baumgarner, James and Mitchell are about as dependable right-handers as you could wish for. Give the crowd a run or two and any old team will have an awful time beating them."

Hugh Jennings is well tickled with the behavior of his twirlers to date. He has every reason to be. Four of them are reliable winners with averages of .500 or better.

The major league managers who lament that the Feds have copped their men and spoiled their chances should pause a moment and regard Charley Hierony. The Feds grabbed about five of his and he's right up there at the top. Charley is making history at Cincinnati this summer.

Johnny Coulton is a mighty good sport anyway. He knows how to lose with grace. Here is a letter he wrote to a sport writing friend in Chicago shortly after his battle:

"I take pleasure in saying that as long as I was to be defeated I am glad that a grand little fellow like Williams did the trick. The fans of this country can well be proud of him. He is a true champion. He has my very best wishes, and I sincerely hope and believe he will defend his honors as honestly as I have done."

NEW MOTOR DOME TO BE OPENED HERE TOMORROW

A new motor dome has been erected at the corner of Milwaukee and Academy streets in which public exhibitions will be given tomorrow by Charles Eckhart of Oshkosh. The new structure is twenty feet high and is portable. It was built and will be of this city. After the opening trial here they plan to travel to the different fairs of the state and present exhibitions.

LOCAL HORSES IN JULY FOURTH RACES

Horses Trained at Janesville Driving Park Entered in Races at Sun Prairie Saturday.

Four horses, which were trained at the Janesville track, will have their first try-out Saturday at the Fourth of July race program at Sun Prairie. Fast time is expected as the horses are in trim for a fast pace and much is expected of them.

Those entered are Mable Fuller, owned by Joe Schewely, of Evansville; J. C. N., owned by John C. Nichols, Janesville; Addition, E. E. Kimball and Star Light, owned by Thomas E. Root. A number of Janesville horsemen will witness the Sun Prairie races.

Sport Snap Shots

Pitchers Williams and Roche of the St. Louis Cardinals watched an American league game the other day. They had stayed at home while the Cards were on tour and they chafed out to watch the Naps and Browns. It so happened that the Naps played a remarkably speedy game that day and Williams and Roche marveled as they watched. "Can it be," they asked in chorus of a fan near by, "that these Naps are at the bottom in the American league race?" Such, they were assured, was the case. "Then they would seem," observed both Williams and Roche, "that the American league is some considerable league with that bunch of Naps for tail enders." And most every one agrees that the American league has the bulk on the National this season.

There's an Eddie Collins in Holyoke, Mass. In a recent suit against the street car company he won $14,000 for the loss of his leg in a collision. And he really deserved every cent of it because he's ten years old, and as you may suppose he was out to be a ball player. The lawyer for the street car people declared in his argument that artificial legs are being made so perfectly that the loss of a real leg is no longer a serious handicap. But Eddie Collins' lawyer didn't put his best chance. He explained to the jury that the loss of a leg was a most serious handicap to Eddie because it ruined forever his chances of following his proper calling.

That Eddie was going to follow in the footsteps of his illustrious namesake—and the jury came right across with the verdict for $14,000.

Wallace McCurdy a two-mile runner at the University of Penn. is called the gamest athlete in college circles. In a recent intercollegiate meet he entered the race when he really should have stayed in bed. He was in the hospital immediately after the event he was operated on for varicose veins. Though he didn't win the race he forced Hoffmeier, the Cornell star, to the record in beating him. McCurdy said he knew that his school would need any points he might make and he was determined to go in and try and win. As a result of what he is as big a hero around the school today as though he had taken several events.

Joe Birmingham says that Branch Rickey has a better pitching staff with his Browns than any other team in the American league. Which, considering the pitching class that can be found in the A. L., is some boost. Where do you find three better southpaws than Hamilton, Levern and Weisman? asks Joe. "Look about a bit and you'll see I'm right. And Baumgarner, James and Mitchell are about as dependable right-handers as you could wish for. Give the crowd a run or two and any old team will have an awful time beating them."

Hugh Jennings is well tickled with the behavior of his twirlers to date. He has every reason to be. Four of them are reliable winners with averages of .500 or better.

The major league managers who lament that the Feds have copped their men and spoiled their chances should pause a moment and regard Charley Hierony. The Feds grabbed about five of his and he's right up there at the top. Charley is making history at Cincinnati this summer.

Johnny Coulton is a mighty good sport anyway. He knows how to lose with grace. Here is a letter he wrote to a sport writing friend in Chicago shortly after his battle:

"I take pleasure in saying that as long as I was to be defeated I am glad that a grand little fellow like Williams did the trick. The fans of this country can well be proud of him. He is a true champion. He has my very best wishes, and I sincerely hope and believe he will defend his honors as honestly as I have done."

NEW MOTOR DOME TO BE OPENED HERE TOMORROW

A new motor dome has been erected at the corner of Milwaukee and Academy streets in which public exhibitions will be given tomorrow by Charles Eckhart of Oshkosh. The new structure is twenty feet high and is portable. It was built and will be of this city. After the opening trial here they plan to travel to the different fairs of the state and present exhibitions.

BIG RACERS READY FOR SPEED CONTEST

Plenty of Excitement Promised at Driving Park Where Eight Thrilling Races Will be Staged.

The big racing cars entered in the speed contests at the Driving Park tomorrow afternoon, arrived this morning, and their drivers have been busy tuning up and practicing so that when Starter Harry Nowlan calls the first race everything will be in readiness for a record-breaking exhibition.

The list of events and entries will be as follows:

Event No. 1.—5-mile motorcycle race for machines of 61.00 cu. in. Event No. 2.—Automobile time trials. Event No. 3.—5-mile Cycle Car race. Event No. 4.—10-mile handicap motorcycle race. Event No. 5.—5-mile match race between Jackson and Cutting Cars. Event No. 6.—3-mile match race between Fiske on an Indian motorcycle and Bob Burman's 100 H. P. Cutting Car. Event No. 7.—15-mile handicap motorcycle race. Event No. 8.—5-mile open automobile race.

Automobile entries to date: No. 10.—Frederick—Jackson—Beloit. No. 12.—Scheibler—Marion—Burlington.

No. 14.—Driver not named—Alco Six—Burlington. No. 15.—Mulford or Breemo—100 H. P. Cutting—Chicago. No. 1.—Comstock—Jefferson—Jefferson. No. 2.—Swanson—Indian—Rockford. No. 3.—Fiske—Indian—Beloit. No. 4.—Bewed—Indian—Beloit. No. 5.—Bick—Thor—Rockford. No. 6.—Sparks—Thor—Beloit. No. 7.—Oakes—Indian—Oshkosh. No. 8.—Rock—Thor—Oshkosh. No. 9.—Fronsdor—Excelsior—Ft. Atkinson.

Cycle Car entries: Brown—Imp—Janesville. Fiske—Imp—Beloit. Seldom have such a large number of star drivers been assembled on any mile track and they will undoubtedly furnish sport that will be long remembered.

Two matinees will be played at the Apollo Theatre on the afternoon of the Fourth. The first will start at 1:30 and let out in time for the parade. The second will start immediately after the parade at 3:30. This was done so that there would not be a show in progress during the parade.

The Colonial Minstrel Maids present an attraction above the average. The girls have excellent voices that blend well. Some fine spectacular dancing is done by one which merits the applause she receives. Baby June won the hearts of all. Baby is a petite little lady of only five years.

PRINCE ALBERT

the national joy smoke

into a jimmy pipe or roll a pinch of it into a cigarette and you're on. Tomorrow's the day we get busy celebrating our national independence—and the right day for taking on independence from a parched, stung and smoke-bitten tongue. P. A. means freedom from all that. Get the something that makes a P. A. fan of everyone that trades a dime for the tidy red tin or a nickel for the toppy red bag. P. A. in a pipe won't bite you won't sting you, won't make you run for water. Smoke it all day and it's all the same. You know, the bite is taken out by an exclusive, patented process. Join in the joy-noise of the P. A. army and help get the lights burning early.

Prince Albert is sold everywhere in toppy red bags. Key tidy red tins, 10c; also, in handsome pound and half-pound tins.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

"Twenty-two years ago a rather more than ordinarily notable dinner was given by a well known Bostonian in honor of a famous physician," writes George C. Lawrence in Appleton's for July. "The menu at that time was considered an epicurean achievement, containing the names of not only many rare dishes, but many rare wines. To the latter especially the nineteen guests applied themselves assiduously. The host, on the contrary, sat at the head of the table nibbling dry toast and sipping mineral water.

"Isn't that pathetic," said one of the guests to the famous physician who sat at his side.

"Yes," was the cynical reply, as the medical man poised his glass of wine in mid-air. "Yes—nineteen fools and one wise man."

"Eighteen years later twelve of this assembly were still alive, and met strangely enough at another dinner. And here is the significant fact. Ten out of the twelve drank mineral water. For purely personal reasons of business or health they had become convinced that liquor drinking did not pay.

"In that incident is the true explanation of the present widespread legislation against liquor selling. For the marvel of this legislation is not the legislation itself. Laws have never been made for men good. It is only when the majority has advanced in individual standards that it enforces its will through legislation. It has been because the majority has become convinced that liquor selling does not pay that laws have been passed stopping the trade."

The wave of temperance reform, now sweeping over the country, gathers impulse, not so much through agitation or organized effort on the part of prohibitionists, as through sober thinking on the part of the people, and stringent regulation enforced by many of the great industries.

The railway companies lead the procession, in this reform movement, and as they place an age limit on men who enter the operative service, the new generation, which furnishes recruits for the ranks, has long since discovered that temperate habits are demanded.

This in itself is an educator and the spirit which prompts it is destitute of sentiment, for "safety first" is now the popular slogan, and the railroads introduced it, after many expensive experiences, for which drink was responsible.

The fact has long been recognized that people are seldom made good by law and the strength of the present reform movement is found in the disposition to adopt a code of self-government, which regulates individual life and results in forming good habits.

The young man who reaches the age of twenty-five, with a clear moral record and free from the taint of the social glass, seldom becomes a dissipated man, and so every effort is now being employed to save young men, at the most important age in their history.

It is said that the next generation of farmers will be larger producers than their fathers were, because more intelligent methods are employed, through the aid of scientific discovery.

The boy who tills the soil today, knows something about the character of the soil and how to restore it to normal condition when it needs restoring. The farmer of the future will use his brain as well as his muscles, and increased production will be the result.

What is true of farming is true of every other calling which demands intelligence and the use of the brain. The age of invention and discovery has equipped the land with machinery which is almost human in action, and this improved equipment demands intelligent operators.

It is to be regretted that our schoolmaster president is so much of a theorist and so destitute of business knowledge, that he fails to grasp the situation, and so instead of lending a hand, to the great forward movement, he becomes an obstructionist, and a stumbling block to prosperity.

Colonel Roosevelt sized him up correctly in his Pittsburgh speech, the other night when he said in substance that he was attempting to turn back the clock of time two hundred years by destroying enterprise and restoring the hand loom and primitive methods.

It is well to note the fact that with the march of progress in the industrial and commercial world, that the pace has also been quickened in the realm of moral and religious thought, and while the sacredness of creed may have suffered, the great principles which enter into the development of character, were never so pronounced as today.

The standard of morals in both national and civic life, has been raised to such a degree, that many things which were once considered right, are now pronounced wrong. The grafter is no longer a leading citizen, and common honesty is becoming a common heritage.

This uplift movement was not long in discovering that drink and the drink habit was responsible for many crimes, as well as for the undermining of moral character. The physician who pronounced his guests as "nineteen fools and one wise man," at the Boston dinner twenty years ago, would revise his verdict had been present at a similar function a few days ago.

The temperance movement is aided today from almost every angle. Even the manufacturers and the dealers in intoxicants are passing regulative requirements more stringent than demanded by the authorities, and while they may be influenced by fear, and not entitled to moral credit, the cause of temperance is aided, nevertheless.

It is easier for a young man to start right today than it was twenty-five years ago, because the pitfalls are not so numerous, and because moral integrity is demanded. The fact is appreciated, as never before, that it is just as easy to cultivate good habits as bad ones, and because of this fact many people develop a code of morals automatically.

The man who was never profane and who never drank, is entitled to no particular credit for a clean vocabulary, or wholesome breath. He was never a victim of either habit. This is true concerning a long list of virtues, and the world is growing better every year, because of this fact.

The churches recognize today, as never before, the saving grace of automatic goodness, and so the doors are thrown open wide to welcome the children to membership, and thus aid the home in saving the child from the snares which beset the pathway.

With all the evidences of advance in the moral kingdom, and a ten billion dollar crop smiling at us from every nook and corner of the land, the day of independence we celebrate tomorrow should be a glad day of thanksgiving as well.

CROWDS BEGIN TO ARRIVE FOR MONSTER CELEBRATION

Crowds for Janesville's mammoth Fourth of July celebration are beginning to arrive. Large numbers have arrived at both depots throughout the day and many more are expected on the evening trains. No considerable difficulty in handling them was experienced by the railroad officials. All trains after four o'clock tomorrow will have from three to five extra coaches to accommodate those returning home. Janesville is the only town of any size in this vicinity which will celebrate the nation's birthday and for this reason an unusually large crowd may be expected.

I. D. Araham.

D. O. Lively and I. D. Araham of the department of live stock of the Panama-Pacific exposition are laying plans for the biggest egg laying contest in history. It will begin on November 1, 1914, and last for twelve full months. It will be conducted under the supervision of the poultry division of the College of Agriculture of the University of California. The owner of the pen making the highest egg record for the year will receive a trophy and $75 in gold.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together. And until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proved Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. A queer way of disposing of their old boots is followed by the Colombo police. When these "cast offs" have accumulated to a figure bordering round a thousand they are taken down to the police bulk in the harbor and thrown into the sea. Formerly, policemen were allowed to dispose of these, when they became unserviceable, but according to new regulations, they have to return to headquarters all boots when they get worn out.

Farming and Prosperity.

To conserve the soil, to raise abundant crops and an adequate supply of live stock; to study and apply the most efficient and economical methods of production, and to sell the stock only when ready for market, adopting the above as a steady, permanent policy, will contribute more to the prosperity of farmers themselves and to the prosperity of the nation than all other causes put together.

World's Principal Want.

I know few wants that press upon our modern life with more immediate necessity than the want of silence. Sidney Lanier.

Common Presursor of Cancer.

It is well proved that chronic ulcer of the stomach, gallstones, and many other irritative conditions of the gastro-intestinal tract are a direct cancer menace to a patient. Any swelling, any little growth like a wart, mole or tumor that suddenly or gradually begins to grow, and increases in size, should be removed by surgical means. The removal of chronic irritation, wherever it may be, is the only known preventive for cancer.

Where Values Are Relative.

It is well proved that chronic ulcer of the stomach, gallstones, and many other irritative conditions of the gastro-intestinal tract are a direct cancer menace to a patient. Any swelling, any little growth like a wart, mole or tumor that suddenly or gradually begins to grow, and increases in size, should be removed by surgical means. The removal of chronic irritation, wherever it may be, is the only known preventive for cancer.

Throw Old Boots into Sea.

A queer way of disposing of their old boots is followed by the Colombo police. When these "cast offs" have accumulated to a figure bordering round a thousand they are taken down to the police bulk in the harbor and thrown into the sea. Formerly, policemen were allowed to dispose of these, when they became unserviceable, but according to new regulations, they have to return to headquarters all boots when they get worn out.

Farming and Prosperity.

To conserve the soil, to raise abundant crops and an adequate supply of live stock; to study and apply the most efficient and economical methods of production, and to sell the stock only when ready for market, adopting the above as a steady, permanent policy, will contribute more to the prosperity of farmers themselves and to the prosperity of the nation than all other causes put together.

The man who was never profane and who never drank, is entitled to no particular credit for a clean vocabulary, or wholesome breath. He was never a victim of either habit. This is true concerning a long list of virtues, and the world is growing better every year, because of this fact.

The churches recognize today, as never before, the saving grace of automatic goodness, and so the doors are thrown open wide to welcome the children to membership, and thus aid the home in saving the child from the snares which beset the pathway.

With all the evidences of advance in the moral kingdom, and a ten billion dollar crop smiling at us from every nook and corner of the land, the day of independence we celebrate tomorrow should be a glad day of thanksgiving as well.

CROWDS BEGIN TO ARRIVE FOR MONSTER CELEBRATION

Crowds for Janesville's mammoth Fourth of July celebration are beginning to arrive. Large numbers have arrived at both depots throughout the day and many more are expected on the evening trains. No considerable difficulty in handling them was experienced by the railroad officials. All trains after four o'clock tomorrow will have from three to five extra coaches to accommodate those returning home. Janesville is the only town of any size in this vicinity which will celebrate the nation's birthday and for this reason an unusually large crowd may be expected.

The owner of the pen making the highest egg record for the year will receive a trophy and $75 in gold.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together. And until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proved Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J. ALL IN READINESS FOR VAST THROGS EXPECTED SATURDAY

Bakeries, Restaurants, Ice Cream Factories, Pop Companies Have Large Supplies for Celebration.

Will Janesville be able to accommodate the vast throngs that will be here for the mammoth celebration tomorrow? With favorable weather conditions between thirty and thirty-five thousand people are expected to celebrate the Fourth here. After a week of special arrangements Janesville men declare that they will be able to handle the crowd successfully.

The first thought for the comfort of the guests of the city will be to take care of the cakes. For the past two and three days the two large bakeries in this city have been working an increased force both day and night, more than doubling their capacity. One of the bakeries now declared they expected to sell over twenty-five thousand loaves of bread today and the Fourth. A large percentage of this was out of town trade. The two bakeries will ship approximately thirty thousand loaves of bread out of Janesville to nearly every section of the state. What bread will be baked today and tomorrow, estimated at twenty-five or thirty thousand loaves, will be sold in Janesville tomorrow.

One of the heaviest demands on the bakeries for the fourth is sandwiches. Eight to ten thousand dozen have been ordered from one of the larger bakeries in this city. It is safe to say that within the last three days nearly three times this number has been made by baking companies in Janesville. In which it is claimed that nearly forty thousand pounds of bread alone will be sold before the celebration is over. About twenty-five thousand pounds have been ordered and more are expected to be used by the bakeries and many dealers have delayed their orders to ascertain the weather conditions. Cakes have also been ordered with an unusual demand, hotels and restaurants are also taking orders. An attempt to estimate their number was a hopeless task.

The Shurtliff company have been working overtime for the past week supplying out of town orders and will be able to supply orders for thousands of gallons of ice cream by the Fourth. What percent of that amount will be used in Janesville, the company is unable to estimate, but expressed the opinion that about six thousand gallons will be consumed by the celebrators here. No attempt was made to fill orders on fancy orders, such as abet and trappes, but the entire attention of the big plant was devoted to turning out ice cream for the Fourth.

The greatest problem will be whether the hotels and restaurants will be able to supply the demands. All have employed extra help and owners of the larger cafes declare that no one will be forced to go hungry during the day because of the lack of food. One of the large restaurant owners declared that rush for the "eats" would be from ten-thirty in the morning to ten-thirty in the evening, that during that time there would be little rest. All will charge thirty-five cents for dinner, as was expected, and no special orders will be taken.

At one of the cafes, thirty-three hundred pounds of meat have been ordered and forty bushels of potatoes are expected to be used. At the hotels the rooms have nearly all been contracted for some time ago. Besides the many restaurants and hotels in this city, there will be plenty of stands where the hungry celebrators will have "red hots, eat em up" and home made pies and their appetites. It would take a mathematician skilled in the fourth dimension to figure out how many hand sandwiches will be eaten in this city.

For the third No attempt was made to estimate how much of a brew imported from sturdy Germany and has the reputation of putting certain large Wisconsin cities on the map, will be drunk, but judging from the number of well filled wagons that have been kept busy the last two days, a number of people will not go "dry" tomorrow. The two pop factories in Janesville have easily prepared four hundred cases, containing 24 bottles to a case, for the Fourth of July trade. Fully thirty thousand bottles will be sold in Janesville tomorrow. This is enough to fill the Y. M. C. A. swimming tank three times and then leave enough for a shower bath. Buttermilk fresh from this country and unadulterated milk that has filtered through several stands. The combined beverages that will be consumed in this city tomorrow, especially if the sunshine helps the good cause, would make a "big sized" lake. Special arrangements have been made for an extra supply of nature's best, Janesville water.

With all these preparations all the visitors will have to worry about in Janesville tomorrow will be eat, drink and be merry.

How many cigars will be smoked, many twenty thousand, declared the dealers who have not in stocks of the big sellers accordingly.

CITY IS DECORATING WITH AMERICAN FLAG

Symbol of Freedom is Only Form Used For Big Celebration Tomorrow—Etiquette of Flag.

Janesville's sane Fourth celebration tomorrow will be the scene of hundreds, yes thousands of American flags, the only form of decorating that will be noticed anywhere about the city.

The red, white and blue symbol of what we are, a country where freedom predominates, has been placed on every telephone pole in and about store fronts, not to mention the hundreds of homes in the city that will likewise be draped tomorrow.

In former years, the city made extensive plans for decorating, using hundreds of dollars alone to make Milwaukee and Main streets a gorgeous sight. The simple three-color scheme has been brought back into light, and tomorrow, the entire city of Janesville will be graced only with the national banner.

Etiquette of Flag.

The military ceremony observed to show proper respect for the American flag requires that the flag shall not be hoisted before sunrise, nor be allowed to remain up after sunset. At "retreat" at sunset, civilian spectators should stand at "attention" during the playing of the national anthem.

Military spectators are required by regulation to stand at "attention" and give the military salute. During the playing of the national anthem, the flag should be lowered, but not then allowed to touch the ground. When the flag is passing in parade or in view review, the spectators should, if walking, halt, and if sitting, arise and stand at "attention."

When the flag is flown at half staff as a sign of mourning it should be hoisted to full staff at the conclusion of the funeral. In placing the flag at half staff, it should first be hoisted to the top of the staff and then lowered to position.

The national salute is one gun for every state. The International salute is under the law of nations, twenty-one guns.

After a victory by the Army or Navy, the flag should be displayed. When and How to Display the Flag. February 22nd—Washington's Birthday.

April 19th—Battle of Lexington Anniversary.

May 30th—Memorial Day.

June 14th—Flag Day.

June 17th—Battle of Bunker Hill Anniversary.

July 4th—Independence Day.

October 17th—Battle of Saratoga Anniversary.

October 19th—Surrender of Yorktown Anniversary.

November 25th—Evacuation Day.

On May 20th, Memorial Day, the flag should fly at half staff from sunrise to noon and at full staff from noon to sundown.

BIG BUSINESS "BOGY"

Danger in Weakness as Well as of Week.

By Ellis E. Usher.
Milwaukee, July 3.—In last week's letter I referred to the "Republican" convention at Madison on the 22d. The Oshkosh Northwestern proceeded to "take a fall out of me," as the boys say, not only for that, but because I'm "a rabid reactionary" on general principles and represent a body but myself. It is gratifying to know that so progressive a friend as Gen. Hicks reads my letters carefully, even if not understandingly, for I did not name the convention in question. It was named by those who composed it, and I am no more likely to vote that ticket than any other of the possibilities among the republican actionaries and reactionaries. But it doesn't make any difference to the public what I vote, and as to what I write I am obliged to him for saying that I express my own opinions, for that has always been my habit, and I am old enough for to be pretty sure of myself. With this brief aberration I want to say that my idea of a reactionary is that of a man who not only cannot look ahead, but is actually moving on the recoil.

Young Men as Voters.
It should be remembered that these letters have said that no political movement can amount to anything without the support of the young men who do the voting. The average voter exercises that privilege about twelve years, because the life insurance experience tables reckon the expectancy of life of the average American who lives to become a voter at a total of about sixty years, and the average voter is about 27 years of age. Mr. La Follette's state leadership took shape in 1898, sixteen years ago. He was a middle-aged man then. Today he is long past the meridian, nearing sixty. For sixteen years, then, new voters have been coming upon the stage in this state, and the irrevocable laws of nature have removed annually their proportion of older voters. It isn't a hard problem to solve. This is not the Wisconsin of sixteen years ago. It is made up of old men. But Mr. La Follette and his leaders, Mr. McGovern, and his, and the democrats who call themselves progressives, are all making the mistakes of their predecessors and forgetting that men change so rapidly. To prove this look over the list of the public men for the past fourteen years, since La Follette's first victory, and try to point out a name among them that was unheard of sixteen years ago. The effort will surprise you. The "boys" have had no more recognition from the progressives of any party, than they had from the old war time leaders. It is a wise man who can grasp the full significance of the truth that every man has a chance in life, to with his own generation. It therefore, comes but once, in the vast majority of cases. It looks to me as if the reactionary is the man who ignores facts at present, "like a duck's foot in the mud." Her hope is in the newer generation. They are natives of the state. It belongs to them and it is their interest as well as their duty to guard it from pillage by taxation, and from extravagance in public expenditures. They are the ones who will profit or suffer as they order the consequences.

Clafin Failure.
Little has been said in the newspapers, considering its gravity, about the Clafin failure, the greatest commercial failure that ever occurred in this country. Not many months ago a bank in Pittsburgh that had widely scattered public utility interests, failed for $30,000,000, and it had attention for only a day or two, and these are not isolated cases. For a year and more the tendency has been to whisper about these disasters. It is evident that, as has been said in these letters, the banks are strong to a degree unheard of in the past, this is true in Wisconsin, and they have also co-operated to spread out the liabilities of business as widely, and to distribute them as safely as possible. They are not hoarding unprofitable money because they enjoy it and the talk of a conspiracy to discredit the national administration is pupile. That business and finance are both timid as a pikestaff, but it is not wholly the result of "conspiracy" nor of the tariff, nor of the Federal (out- as to the new banking law. It is a combination of conditions at home and abroad, and, primarily, it is a world wide need of what Josh Billings predicted for the fellow about to eat sausage—confidence. One thing the Clafin failure suggests is that the bogey of "big business" is not unlike many another scarecrow, more dangerous in its weakness than in its strength. A concern that encompassed twenty-seven stores in many cities, with factories and other machinery for supplying these institutions, is in a position to scatter disaster very widely, and it must have good trade or large financial resources to keep afloat. Credit is one of the necessities, and credit shrinks with poor trades. This applies to every great corporation in the country, and the torment they have all been kept in for several years, it began in Tait's time, may be deserved, but, if so, the people are getting what they have voted for, for forty years, as well as very recently. Protection has built up giants, but, as the Clafin business indicates, giants totter as well as walk, with giant strides.

The two things that seem to assure safety in a situation that had far better be faced than mumbled, is that the banks are strong enough to stand the strain of the new law that proposes to force the currency system to run up hill, and to furnish funds to handle a phenomenal crop that the Lord has provided. The railroads are hampered by the timidity of money, but they can move the crop in the "straw" and it is a pity, however, that the democrats are trying to contribute to increase with the currency law, the artificiality of a commercial system already suffering from that distemper.

A Slap at Wisconsin.
In an address to the graduating class at Ann Arbor, President James of the University of Illinois, among other suggestive things, said the body of university professors to run the state government is a confession of weakness and bankruptcy on the part of state officials. The way out of the difficulty, and I am quite willing to recognize a great difficulty here, is not to put the government in commission under the supervision of university professors, but to train up a new brand of civil servants and legislators and educate the people to employ them. To make the university a mere handmaid of state administration is not to improve the latter in the long run, but is to strike a fatal blow at the real service which the university may render the state, viz., the advance of science and the efficient training of its students for the highest possible work in public and private station.

Wisconsin was not mentioned by President James, but it was undoubtedly in his mind and in the minds of his hearers. This is only another brand of "straw" to prove that when the wind shifts, it soon blows with increasing force. President James congratulated Michigan that it had not shared "the more or less hysterical claims for the university that it should lead human society or guide and control state government." Some Wisconsin people will do well to note that Wisconsin may not be so popular outside as they have been led to think. First and foremost, the blow do not make people especially beloved among their associates.

Erie Development.
The recent "Erie Railroad" pamphlet telling of the growth in earnings, equipment and roadway since 1901 and covering 1913, contains suggestive material for railroad history. The Erie spent $90,000,000 for improvements and extensions. These items include reduction of grade, as well as added mileage. The Erie consists of 49 miles of single track; 886 miles of double track, and 64 miles of four track. The Erie has 1,034.28 miles of road and the president of the Erie was a boy just in his teens, out on the "old homestead" at Wauwatosa. The Erie is handling more western freight today than most of its more formidable rivals.

Comment on Sports.
The biggest event in the American rowing world is the regatta at Poughkeepsie. Cornell, many times a winner, was defeated by Columbia. The latter had not won a race in nineteen years. Our own university does not seem able to cope with the easterners. The University of Washington, from the far west, was also weaker than her competitors. The failures of Wisconsin crews in previous years have been assigned to various faults and accidents. This year they admit they were plainly outclassed.

Organized baseball (so called) has won a victory over the Federal (out- as to the new banking law. It is a combination of conditions at home and abroad, and, primarily, it is a world

National league team. This wavering gentleman, it seems, had signed to play with Philadelphia, then decided to try the Chicago Federal league club and finally went back to Philadelphia after signing contracts all 'round. The Chicago club wanted Wm. Killifer to come back or be sent back. The case has been appealed to the appellate court.

Short Notes.
Miss Annie A. Nunn will receive the sincere congratulations of many people who know that she has long been a faithful, intelligent worker in the office of the secretary of the Wisconsin State Historical Society. She has been appointed assistant secretary, an office that she has filled, without the title, for many years. An early fur trading post, known as the Rowan-St. Cyr post, the site of which is at the northwest corner of Lake Mendota, Dane county, was marked on June 20, with a bronze tablet. The Wisconsin Archeological Society, the Federation of Women's Clubs, and the Daughters of the American Revolution participated, and Dr. Louise P. Kellogg delivered the dedicatory address.

Despite threatening clouds, 7,000 people gathered at Lake Park Wednesday night, to hear outdoor grand opera, furnished by the park board. The innovation was enthusiastically received and its reception speaks well for the public, when given opportunity to show approval of really good music and entertainment.

Democrats have now called a convention because they can't "get together" under the present boss system. A good many different kinds of peacefully inclined people seem to be roaming the earth, just now, with concealed weapons on their persons.

Irene Boyle.

"One hundred and ten pounds of energy and enthusiasm," is the way a newspaper man recently described Irene Boyle, a leading lady in the movies. Continuing, he spoke of her as:
"A superbly proportioned little lady, who barely reaches the five-foot-two mark. A strikingly attractive face with a deliciously tilted nose that is as Irish as the big, blue eyes above it. The eyes are deserving of special mention. They have the trick of gazing steadily at the speaker, conveying the impression of fearlessness. The whole topped by a glorious mass of jet black hair."

Top, Earl Grey (left) and Lord Kitchener. Bottom, the Khedive of Egypt.

That Egypt and the Soudan are soon to be incorporated into the British Empire, and the Egyptian khedive deposed, is the conviction which prevails in certain particularly well-informed circles of an official, political, and financial character in London and Paris. Long regarded as inevitable in every capital in Europe, the time for a coup of this kind has arrived, in the opinion of Lord Kitchener and of his government, and it was for the purpose of discussing it with President Poincaré and his ministers that Sir Edward Grey recently went to Paris.

Dr. Goodnow Praises Chinese Constitution

Peking, July 3.—Dr. Frank J. Goodnow, who plans to give up his post of advisor to the president of China and return to America in August to become president of Johns Hopkins University, is pleased with the revision of the provisional constitution of this country. Though the revision of this constitution is criticized and ridiculed by the foreign press published in China—The Chinese press not daring to do so—Goodnow says it is much like the drafts which he drew up at the request of the president. "It is modeled in a large measure," says Goodnow, "on the American constitution, making allowance for a president as differing from an Emperor."

It will be remembered that president Yuan Shi-kai found the provisional constitution, which the revolutionists drafted two years ago at Nanjing, unsuitable to the effective administration of affairs during the critical first years of the republic. He desired, therefore, to see the permanent constitution drawn up on lines which he deemed suitable to this country. But those radical reformers who wanted a "people's government," disregarded the president's wishes and advice and, when the parliament was assembled, undertook the work of drafting the permanent constitution, not only without seeking his assistance, but in distinct opposition to him. The committee selected to do the work declined to receive a message from him and also refused to admit his personal emissaries into their conferences. Thereupon Yuan Shi-kai took matters in his own hands, issued a mandate dissolving the Kwo Ming Tang, the radical party, which was the largest, and thereupon dislocated the parliament. The presidential mandate declared that the Kwo Ming Tang was a rebel party which had done harm to the state by interfering in a hostile manner with the administration and by creating a rebellion in the southern provinces. The mandate referred to the so-called second rebellion.

As a result of the forcible dissolution of the Kwo Ming Tang the parliament ceased to function, because there was not a sufficient number of members left to muster a quorum. The president later caused a committee to be appointed for the purpose of revising the provisional constitution. The committee was composed of his own group of politicians and the present revision was the result.

As reported in the dispatches the revised constitution gives the president practically dictatorial powers. He has held this hitherto—to such an extent as any single man can be a dictator—but not legally. He is now surrounded with the form of legality.

"Japan's constitution," Goodnow explains, "has been a successful attempt to adapt ideas of European representative government to an Asiatic people that has always had an autocratic government. The last two years especially show that the Japanese people are getting control of their government. It looks to me as if a constitution like that now adopted by China if the people only work it, is capable of developing representative government."

"Of course," it is true that the president has wide powers over the executive and administrative branches of the government. He appoints all civil and military officers, and has the power to dismiss all officials with the single exception of judges; and his exercise of this power is not subject to the control of the legislature. He also has large powers of legislation, and holds practically absolute veto power over the actions of the legislature. This is to say, he has power to issue ordinances not contrary to law to promote public welfare as well as execute the law. And in times of urgency, when the legislature cannot be called together, he has the power to issue ordinances which supersede existing law. These ordinances, different from ordinances issued in promotion of public welfare, must be submitted to the legislature for approval and if disapproved, become void. It will thus be seen that the president has considerable power of legislation with regard to matters which have not been regulated by law.

"The means of the power of veto," he can prevent legislation. On the other hand the legislature is given no power for repealing either expressly or impliedly unless its action secures the president's approval.

"If, however, a legislative body which is at all effective can be developed, it is hardly to be doubted that it will exercise great influence over the president's power of legislation. If the body is incapable it will not hamper him. It is effective and really represents the people the president will not be likely to use his power of veto in serious matters.

"For the past two years this country has been financed by foreign loans. In this way the annual heavy deficit in revenues has been made to meet the increased military and other expenses. Unless we can look to a great increase in taxes further loans will have to be made. They, to be valid, must, according to the constitution, be made by the legislature, whose action is also necessary for any increase in taxation. The early English parliaments did not exercise control over the appropriations; they had authority over taxation. It was only later that control of appropriations developed in England.

"This constitution, it is to be remembered, is still a provisional constitution adopted for the purpose of permitting transition with safety and as little friction as possible from the autocratic government of the past to some form of representative government based on European ideas. The provisional constitution itself provides for a permanent constitution which is to be submitted to a citizens' conference to be convoked by the president and to be organized by the same body which has drawn up the present revised provisional constitution. If experience should show that the powers granted to the president by the provisional constitution are too large and that it is possible under conditions now existing in China for a legislative body capable of effective action to develop, there is no reason to suppose that China will not take successfully the first steps along the road of constitutional government under this revised provisional constitution—as has already been indicated in Japan under a similar instrument.

"Of the course the success of the revised provisional constitution, as to any constitution that might at this time be adopted depends on the action of the president. The expression of his views with regard to the president's attitude must be largely based on a personal opinion and belief. It is my belief and opinion that the president is sincerely desirous of contributing to the establishment of a form of representative government which will permit China to solve the problems that are before her. President Yuan is, of course, unaccustomed to the form and practice of constitutional government as it is seen in Europe and America. He must also be guided in much that he does by those who are about him and must make use of the means which are at his command. He is naturally inclined to take a conservative rather than a radical view of the situation. And the disorders in the country prove that such an attitude on his part is correct.

"I feel sure that he wishes to give China a form of government that will permit of the representation and expression of the views of the important and influential classes of the community. The Chinese people have been accustomed to a personal government and not the rule of law. Here is a point in favor of the new constitution. It lays stress on personal government as contrary to the legislative method which the revolutionists attempted to establish. This is in the nature of evolution and not radical and dangerous change."

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

A TERRIBLE CONFESSION.

"AND just think, her beds weren't made at three o'clock in the afternoon."

So said the Author Man's Wife.

"Poot," said I, "what of it? I wouldn't give a fig for a woman who couldn't leave her beds unmade until three o'clock in the afternoon."

The Author Man's Wife looked shocked and I wasn't sorry. On the contrary, I love to shock her. She is that type. Nevertheless I didn't say it for that. I meant it. I wouldn't give a fig for a woman who couldn't leave her beds unmade until three in the afternoon or until three the next morning if she had a good reason for doing it.

I went into a young woman's home the other Sunday afternoon. She has a lovely new house, and a third member of the party suggested that I be shown over it. The mistress of the house consented, then blushed, drew back and looked disturbed. The truth shortly came out. She hadn't one of her beds made. She had been to church with her four children and her husband and then to walk in the woods. Visitors had come in directly after dinner; she is a gracious hostess who likes to chat with her guests instead of flitting away to attend to some household duty, and the beds were still waiting a leisurely moment.

"My dear," I said, "please don't be ashamed. I like you the better for it." And I do. I know it means that she places companionship with her husband, her children and her guests above the fetish of perfect household order. I should have liked her even better if she had not been ashamed but had had the complete courage of her convictions.

Why should it be such a crime to have a bed unmade in a room in which you are not going to be all day? If it were in the living room where one sits, that would be another thing. That would confuse the room and take away from its attractiveness. But in a room dedicated to sleep, what does it matter if the arrangements for sleeping are not made until an hour or two before the time to use them?

Let me make what some people will consider a terrible confession. In the summer my beds frequently are not made up at three o'clock, nor at six, nor at any time. I lay the undersheet smoothly and comfortably and leave the rest of the bedclothes arranged over the foot of the bed. I save the labor of making and the labor of opening and I make the beds cooler to sleep in.

No, I am not afraid of encouraging slovenly and disorderly women in their bad habits. I am not commending slovenliness. I believe that a house should be kept as clean and orderly as is necessary for the health and comfort of the occupants, but I believe there are nine women who go beyond the requirements and sacrifice pleasure, happiness, health and companionship to the fetish of unnecessary neatness, to one who falls below that standard.

Every Day Talks To Every Day People

(BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.)

There was, in the years that now lie in time's discard, a story in one of the school readers that told of a number of growing boys out on a half holiday. They came in their tramping to the edge of a tree-lined pool and sat down in the welcome shade to rest.

A family of frogs called this particular spot home. On the arrival of the boys they jumped into the pond. The younger members of this frog family were very much like the younger members of your family and mine, in as much as they were reluctant to ever keep still; they kept coming out of the water, trying to get back on the shady shore.

Their appearance was the signal for the boys to try their ability along the target line. The stones sailed straight and true for the most. The frogs were being dispatched to land where care was not—if frogs have such a place. That night, at home, one boy was proudly boasting about his true aim. "It was glorious fun," he said. "Every stone I threw bowled a frog over, dead."

"It may have been fun for you son," said the mother, "but was it fun for the frogs?"

Grown-ups as well as little boys are apt to take a one-sided view of life. If it is fun for us we hardly ever stop to think about the other party. We hardly ever stop to think—what if the case were reversed? The days that are not yet far enough past to be listed as in time's discard, started out on a "bike" across the country. They came in their tramping to a shady hill, where with common consent, they sat to rest a while.

On one of the lower branches of a large tree was an empty bird's nest, made loosely of twigs and little sticks. The sharp eyes of one of the boys soon spotted the empty bird home.

Another peered into the thick leaves higher up and declared there was a young bird there. It was the work of but a moment to procure bits of stick to toss up and try and dislodge the little fellow from his perch. A third "shinned" up the tree. There was a whirr of scarlet wings, a harsh chirp and the mother bird was flying distractedly around the boys' heads. The young bird could fly fairly well. Under its mother's guidance it flew to a nearby tree. The boys were hot on the scent. This was kept up for probably half an hour, but the battle was too one-sided. The boys won. They captured the little bird, wrapped him in a handkerchief and in spite of the protests of one of their number, planned to take him home.

"Ah! Let him go. He'll only die with you. Give him a fair show. We were too many for him. That is not a square deal. Let him go," pleaded the little soldier of the crew.

"I got him. I'll keep him," said a boy who towered head and shoulders over the little bird, champion. He was as good as his word. Despite the mother bird's chirp, that was plaintive, pleading now, he put the bird, wrapped in his handkerchief, in his pocket.

Arriving home he got out an old bird cage. He would raise the bird. He thought that he could do what other people older wiser than he had tried and failed in the early morning he heard the baby bird softly peeping. He went down in the soft morning light and gave it a worm. It was not a worm the baby bird wanted but the boy, if he knew, could not help him now. Later in the morning when he came down to breakfast, he went out to look at his prize. The little bird lay a ruffled heap on the bottom of the cage. His life had been snuffed out before its time. All because one boy had not been taught to never take what he cannot give back.

Grown-ups as well as little boys are apt to take what they cannot give back. If you destroy a person's reputation, by unnecessary talking, you are doing exactly what the little boy did who, without reason, took from the baby bird his chance for life and freedom. You are doing worse—for you are older and know better.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a girl of thirteen years.

(1) Can large knuckles be reduced? (2) When a girl addresses her friend with "kid," is it slang? (3) What is a "disappointed blonde"? (4) What is good for oily hair? (5) Am I too young to use powder? (6) What is "puppy love"? (7) I have a sister who quarrels with me a great deal. What should I do? (8) What is good for a bad breath? "THANK YOU."

(1) There is no cure for large knuckles, but as you grow older and your hands get fleshier, they will not show so much.

(2) Yes.

(3) A woman with bleached hair. (4) Mix two ounces alcohol, two ounces witch hazel and fourteen grains resorcin; use this daily rubbing a little of it well into the scalp. Keep the hair clean and well brushed all the time. (5) Yes, indeed, my dear. A girl's clear healthy skin is prettier than any powder can make it. Older women who feel that they must freshen up with powder must give anything to have a young girl's skin so they would not need to use powder. (7) Don't quarrel with her. Think of "the soft answer that turneth away wrath." (8) Your teeth may need attention. Your stomach may be out of order. See a dentist. If it's your stomach, eat only what agrees with you and get some charcoal tablets at the drug store to chew. Also, take a good physic.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am seventeen years old. What profession do you think would be nice to learn? (2) I have a girl friend with whom I chum a great deal. Now, I like this girl real well, only her great fault is telling falsehoods. I know many things she says are not true. I cannot very well stop going with her, for our families are good friends. What do you advise? (3) How could I entertain some friends at a summer home? (4) Do you think it is wrong to use cold cream, even if it is an expensive one? "THANK YOU."

(1) It depends upon what you are fitted to do. I do not know anything about your wishes or abilities or opportunities, my dear. Talk this over with your parents. (2) She may have enough good points to offset the one fault. Your knowledge of her fault will guide you not to trust her statements entirely, but you can still love her for her virtues.

(3) Have a little punch party or lawn party. Possibly you can entertain them with tennis, croquet or some of the other outdoor games. (4) I think cold cream is very necessary where one's skin is much exposed to outdoors. Use it for a cleansing cream at night, wiping it off carefully after using. A little of it on the skin after being out in the wind or sun, is very soothing. If you use powder always put a tiny bit of cold cream on the skin before dusting on the powder. A girl of your age, however, probably has a skin too pretty to be hidden with powder.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I have a wistaria colored suit and would like to have pumps to match, but can't get any, so I got a pair of white satin pumps and will you please tell me how to color them wistaria? And how can I color a pair of white satin pumps gray?

MAY BLOSSOM.

You can get stencil colors in tubes which will do for painting the satin pumps. The colors can be thinned with turpentine or gasoline to the shade desired—try it on something else before using it on the pumps. You may have to mix different colors to get the desired shade. Black thinned will make different shades of gray; for a bluish gray add a little blue; brownish, a little brown, etc. If you cannot get a tube of wistaria, you will have to make the color by mixing; blue and red make purple and by experimenting you can get the wistaria shade.

Apt. Description: "You have lived here 40 years? Then you must remember him as a boy. What was he like?" Oldest Inhabitant— "Well, sur, if 'a be the same as 'a war when I knew en, 'e can't 'ave changed much."—London Observer.

Peggy & Company

XI.
A Bewildered and Cheery Old Conductor Strikes a Responding Chord in The Breast of Our Lovely, Though at Times Peevish Heroine.

When Peggy parted with the train at the little depot and the train had swept her away from the scenes of several pleasant days she settled back into her chair in the parlor car and gave herself up to fond and peevish reflections. As a rule a ride on the train is a pleasure to Peggy. But now she was in no mood to find entertainment in viewing the scenery or studying other passengers. She was being entertained in a more lively manner by her own thoughts. Had anyone asked her at the time she would have replied that she was perfectly and completely wretched. However the important point is—and Peggy didn't realize this—that she was thoroughly enjoying being wretched. She was tasting the poignant pleasures of unhappiness and dejection and enjoying them deeply.

She was picturing to herself the grief and dismay of her family when they viewed her, weakened, fevered and wasted away after a week of staring about the house. How they would come to her, weeping and heartbroken, and in voices choked with emotion plead with her to forgive her of thus taxing her frail health. Her family doctor would come and bring dire predictions and a "look sharp" and have a long and murmured talk with her father, occasional words of which Peggy would just be able to catch, and which would mean that her life would soon be snuffed out. Peggy was hearing, moaning that he should have so harshly treated his daughter.

Her mother, miss, but couldn't we arrange some of these suitcases and boxes a little? Peggy looked up at the rumpled and grey-whiskered conductor who stood before her baggage, grown out in the aisle, regarding her with the kindest and friendliest of imaginable.

"Getting old, you know, and if I don't stumble and break my bones I shall know what we'd do. I'm sure, I shall chuck a few of them up here

ERUPTION ON BABY ITCHED AND BURNED

Something Terrible. Whole Body Affected. Almost Impossible to Sleep. Disfigured Face. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

Silverwood, Mich.—"My baby was about six months old when he first began to break out with little pimples on his head and face. Then they would run water and keep getting worse until his head was a regular sore eruption and water would run and seep from it and his face also. His whole body was affected. They were little white pimples which itched and burned something terrible. His clothing seemed to irritate him and it was almost impossible for him to sleep at night. They also disfigured him as they were on his face.

"We tried medicine but without success. The trouble must have lasted three or four weeks when I thought I would try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I would bathe him with warm water as warm as he could stand and Cuticura Soap, then apply the Cuticura Ointment. The very first time that I did this it seemed to relieve him as he slept well and inside of two weeks he was completely healed. He is fifteen months old now and never has had any more trouble."

(Signed) Mrs. L. White, Jan. 29, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

A single cake of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient when all else has failed. Sold throughout the world. Sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

COMMENCE SWIMMING LESSONS NEXT WEEK

Playground Youngsters Will be Given Opportunity of Mastering Strokes.—Directors in Charge.

The four assistant directors, together with Head Director Walter Cox of the four Janesville playgrounds, are preparing to offer swimming lessons to the youngsters of the city, beginning next week. One of the most interesting phases of the entire playground system of activities, is the daily early morning swim. The schedule has not been made out as yet, but will offer certain days in the week for boys when completed, with the girls filling up the remainder of the program.

The location for instructing the youths the various strokes has not been definitely decided upon as yet. Goose Island is talked of as being as good a spot as any on the river banks. Entire satisfaction resulted from last season's lessons, which were given off Goose Island.

ROAD DRAG BEST AID IN HIGHWAY UPKEEP

Bulletin of Department of Agriculture Explains Importance of This Machinery.

The road drag is the simplest and least expensive contrivance yet devised for maintaining earth roads, according to experts in the United States Department of Agriculture, who are co-operating with state and county authorities in work for better roads.

Properly used, the drag gives the needed crown to the road, smooths out ruts and other irregularities, spreads out puddles of water, thereby accelerating the drying of the road, and makes the surface more or less impervious to water by smoothing over the so-called pores in the earthy material. The cost of operation depends, of course, upon local conditions and the thoroughness with which the work is done. It is safe to say, however, that it is less expensive than any other efficient system of upkeep.

Farmers' Bulletin No. 597, of the department of agriculture, discusses under the title of "The Road Drag and How It Is Used," the best methods of maintaining earth roads in good condition by this simple device. In this bulletin, which has just been published, the department points out that of more than 2,000,000 miles of public roads in the United States, only about 200,000 miles have been given a hard surface. It is true, of course, that a large part of the remaining mileage consists of roads that are entirely unimproved, and that on roads of this class the drag is practically useless. There is a much larger mileage, however, that has been partially improved, and it is on roads of this character—roads that have been crowned or drained, but have not a hard surface—that the use of the drag is advocated. The drag, in its simplest form, the road drag, consists of an ordinary log split in half and the two halves connected like the uprights of a ladder, by means of cross sticks or logs set in the form of runners of the drag, and in diameter, and from 5 to 8 feet in length. It is better to have it of well-seasoned, hard, tough wood. The two semi-cylindrical halves of the log form the runners of the drag, and are usually from 30 to 36 inches apart. The front runner is always placed with the split surface of the log facing forward, but the rear runner sometimes has its rounded face in front. This is done in order to increase the smearing action of the drag as it passes over the surface of the road.

The two runners are not placed directly behind each other, but are "offset," as it is called, from 12 to 16 inches. This is done because the drag is drawn over the road at an angle sufficient to make the runners free themselves of the material which they scrape. The amount of this angle or skew depends, of course, upon the condition of the road. By offsetting runners, it is possible to make their paths follow approximately the same line on the road, which they would not do if they were set directly behind each other and the drag drawn at an angle with the road. As to the time for dragging, a safe rule to follow is to drag the road when the material composing the surface contains sufficient moisture to compact readily, but is not sufficiently wet for traffic to produce mud.

Since the weather plays so important a part in the matter, it is not usually possible to arrange continuous employment for teams on the road. It is therefore desirable when ever possible to have the dragging done by persons interested in the road, who will do it in the intervals of other occupations.

FOUR MILE BRIDGE READY FOR TRAFFIC

Repairs Costing $1,500 Made to Structure in Town of Janesville.

Repairs costing some $1,500 have been made to the Four Mile bridge across Rock river in the town of Janesville, and the structure, which has been closed to traffic for several weeks, was inspected by the county bridge committee on Thursday. The work was found to be satisfactory and the bridge is now ready for use. The old stone piers have been repaired, new steel stringers have been laid and new flooring has been put in, which leaves the structure in first class condition. The expense will be shared jointly by town and county.

The regular meeting of the Women's Foreign Missionary meeting, held at the home of Mrs. Warren Taylor on Wednesday, there were between sixty and seventy in attendance, and a very interesting time is reported.

J. L. Belsky was in the village for a few hours on Thursday transacting business.

Mr. and Mrs. Freeman Fisher of Chicago, who have been spending the past few days with friends in Orfordville, went to Brodhead on Friday, where there will be a gathering of relatives at a picnic on the Fourth.

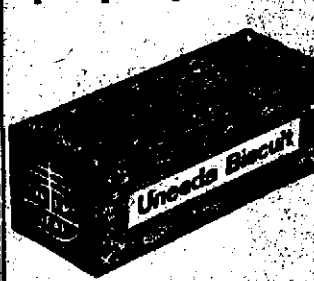

It is reported of the young man who a few weeks ago reported that he had "been held up" at the Five Points, in Janesville, and relieved of his cash, was "sure enough" held up last Sunday, but this time by a Brodhead officer. The charge was being intoxicated in excess of the speed limit while in this condition. The Orfordville officers also have their look-out eye on the gentleman.

Nels Onsgard has purchased another one of the latest models, equipped with four wheels of the same size, thus enabling the carrying of a fifth wheel, so that any wheel or tire trouble may be quickly overcome.

Sunday morning at the M. E. church Rev. W. Schaeffer will deliver a patriotic sermon or address appropriate to the occasion. The church will be suitably decorated and special music suited for the occasion will be rendered by the choir.

First Salvation Army Meeting Held Forty-Nine Years Ago Today

Forty-nine years ago today the world's first meeting of the Salvation Army was held. It took place in an old patched tent erected in an ancient burial ground in the Whitechapel district of London. The first preacher was William Booth, a clergyman who was at that time without a church. He was then called upon to take the place of the regular minister who was dying ill at his home. The first congregation was made up of a "mass" of poor people, many of them without God or hope in the world. Without God or hope in the world, the meeting Booth hurried to his place. He passed the doors of the flaming gin-palaces to night, seeming to hear a voice sounding in his ears: "Where can you find such a mass of sinners as these and where there so great need for your labors?" And there and then in my soul I offered myself and you and our children up to this great work. This was the beginning of a world-wide organization. From that day meetings were held regularly. On the third Sunday the tent blew down and was wrecked beyond repair. Having no money for another and without funds to rent a building, Booth preached in the use of an old dance hall that was not in use on Sundays. Week-day meetings were held in a dilapidated shed. Formerly a storehouse for old rags, as the Army grew it was forced into the streets, narrow alleys, abandoned saloons, or unoccupied theatres became Salvation Army chapels.

Today the Salvation Army is the greatest evangelistic organization in the world. The poke-bonneted Army lassie is a familiar sight in every country on earth with the single exception of Russia. They are "waging God's battle" even in Iceland. They have laid siege to Russia and it is reported that even that empire is on the point of capitulation. Their battle cry is heard in every commonwealth of the United States, more than 900 "outposts," or missions, are located in nearly every city and town. In these meeting places more than 10,000,000 Americans gather during a year's time, to listen to the exhortations of nearly 7,000 officers, of both sexes, that make up the Salvation Army in the United States. The street-corner meeting is a familiar sight in every part of the world. More than 150,000 of these are held every year in this country at which over 60,000 recruits have been gathered in. A twelve-month to the Army's ranks from the congregations. "Our war is a war of mercy" they proclaim and it is witnessed by the world-wide charity of the organization. It has established in the United States nearly 100 work-houses, hotels which accommodate annually more than 2,000,000 persons, over 120 industrial homes where about 3,000,000 meals have been served in a year; about 30 Rescue and Maternity Homes where 6,000 girls and children find shelter.

Curtiss and Lieut. Porte Well Pleased With Trial Flights Of Their Trans-Atlantic Flyer--Start Over Sea Trip Soon

Hammondsport, N. Y., July 2.—Glenn Curtiss, the builder of the ocean aero America with which Lieut. Porte will attempt to fly across the Atlantic before the end of July, is following closely the tryouts of the big whiplike ship of the air is receiving. Mr. Curtiss in his speedy motor craft is seen in the photo following the America around Lake Keuka. So rapidly is the craft skimming through the water that one of the mechanics of the Curtiss factory here is seen holding down the stern of the vessel for fear that she will leave the water entirely.

Lieut. Porte's confidence in his ability to make the transatlantic flight without mishap is apparently as buoyant as ever. But aviators generally are frank to admit that the adventure would be too risky for them. Andre Beaumont, of the French navy, who is the hero of the most spectacular of the long-distance flights so far made, the London Mail for the first circuit of British Isles, has this to say: "Lieut. Porte's attempt marks an epoch in the progress of aviation, although it will prove exceedingly risky. Actual experience, however, has shown the possibility of the construction of a machine capable of crossing the Atlantic."

"The route by way of the Azores is well chosen. It means favorable winds, which will admit a rate of 150 kilometers per hour, thus making it probable that the first stage will be covered in seventeen hours. I think a minimum of two pilots is indispensable, since it will reduce by half the strain of holding the levers true."

"As to motors, the great mistake hitherto has been the attempts to force the pace, no doubt because of fears of being outdistanced. The large prizes offered have been responsible for this. For Porte four months ago, a $50,000 prize offered by the London Mail for the first circuit of British Isles, has this to say: "Lieut. Porte's attempt marks an epoch in the progress of aviation, although it will prove exceedingly risky. Actual experience, however, has shown the possibility of the construction of a machine capable of crossing the Atlantic."

WHICH WAY SHOULD LADY FOR CAPITOL DOME BE FACING?

People of Madison Offer as to Direction—Capitol Commission May Decide the Question.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison, Wis., July 2.—State officialdom is much concerned nowadays over what to do about "Forward," the bronze lady, twenty feet tall, who is soon to begin her long vigil at the highest point of the new capitol dome. The builders are stumped to know in what direction she shall face. Opinion as expressed in a newspaper symposium seems to favor the east—land of the rising sun. High-brow in the Latin quarter of this classic city are very sure the symbolic figure ought to point westward toward the university. Some materialistic souls favor the north—a land full of undeveloped resources, needing only forward hands to open them to the world. The south is favored by others as embracing the most expansive portion of the country, bounded by Wisconsin.

O. C. Simonds, noted Chicago landscape architect, gave expert opinion when he wrote:

"Don't turn the young lady's back completely to the university, one of the city's greatest assets. Make her welcome the visitors to the advantages of the city. Face 'Forward' toward Monona avenue. The dome on the state creates that beautiful park between the present capitol site and Lake Monona, you will have an everlasting monument."

A Waunakee man suggests that the statue face northward "with a look of supreme dissatisfaction at the city's new market place."

Still another, more facetious yet, proposes that Miss Forward stand on a revolving pedestal so that her face may be seen from all sides, and that another commission be appointed to oversee the job, equipped with pow-

Crullers or Fried Cakes

Never Greasy

By Mrs. Janet McKenzie Hill, Editor of the Boston Cooking School Magazine

Everyone likes fried cakes or crullers. Here's a very superior recipe. Follow directions closely—success is certain.

K.C. Crullers or Fried Cakes

Take one cup flour; the level teaspoonfuls K.C. Cruller Powder; 1/2 teaspoonful salt; 1/2 cup granulated sugar; 1/2 cup milk; 1/2 cup shortening; 1/2 cup butter; 1/2 cup eggs; 1/2 cup vanilla.

Sift together, three times, the flour, K.C. Cruller powder, salt and sugar. Add the sugar, butter and milk to the beaten eggs and stir into the dry ingredients to make a stiff dough. Knead slightly; then cut with a fried cake cutter. Drop into a deep kettle filled with hot fat; drain on soft paper or colander and roll in powdered sugar.

To fry have fat at smoking point, turn crullers several times while frying to insure all parts being equally light and thoroughly cooked.

By all means, send for the K.C. Cook's Book—it's free and it contains 50 just such appetizing recipes. Send the colored certificate packed in 25-cent cans to the Jagsuz Mfg. Co., Chicago, and write name and address plainly.

IMPORTS INCREASE IN VALUE SINCE TARIFF

Results Become More Disastrous As Months Come and Go.

By Winfield Jones.

Washington, D. C., July 2.—Each successive month piles up evidence that the democratic tariff is seriously crippling business. We have now more than one-half year of it, and official figures show that the reductions are not making the cost of living cheaper, but are silencing factories and enlarging the army of the unemployed.

The value of manufactures exported during the past six months is $41,000,000 less than in the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year, which means, of course, that our factories have been less busy. In the meantime the deficit in the treasury grows larger.

If any benefits have come from the revision nobody has been able to discover them. The administration is watchfully waiting for the first silver lining to the cloud which has descended upon business, but no prospect in the cabinet or in congress dares venture a guess as to when it will appear.

President Wilson left Princeton University in bad financial condition. He also left the United States treasury in bad financial condition. He left the United States treasury in bad financial condition. He left the United States treasury in bad financial condition.

One of the most experienced provision men in New York, who has been an ardent protectionist since the days of the Cleveland depression, said recently that not until the Underwood tariff law is repealed will this country enjoy the degree of prosperity it surrendered with the repeal of the Payne law. Recall the last year of the Cleveland administration.

"I was called to the headquarters of my house and instructed to make a trip south to dispose of an enormous stock we could not move. The head of the company was placed no bottom figure on the stock, promising to fill orders at any price I accepted. I offered the best I could get, but could get no buyers. The price was no attraction, as the dealers didn't have the money. Fortunately the company was able to weather the times financially and the stock we held went off at higher prices as soon as McKimley was elected. The farmer is the last man to be harmed by lack of confidence and depression, but his profit absolutely depends upon the purchasing power of the artisans and laborers of the cities. All business in long range of the country never for long may have one line of industry prosperous and another depressed. They go up and down together. We cannot buy the 37 per cent increase in this country's imports and make them in this country too. Bumper crops are nature's blessings, but in an industrial country they are not in themselves sufficient for general prosperity. We had good crops in those early days of the nineties. We have better crops than a year ago. The return to protection is the way out.

The foreign commerce of the port of New York for April showed a sale of $11,000,000 in merchandise imports and a decrease of $11,000,000 in exports, as compared with the corresponding month in 1913. The March statement showed an increase of $12,000,000 in imports and a loss of the same amount in exports. Despite this heavy increase in imports the revenue receipts are only a trifle larger.

In two months America lost $23,000,000 in export business. It has not only failed to sell much abroad, but it has had exactly the same

On The Spur of The Moment

Last Call.

The church bell peals its warning tune.

Its last call for the bride of June.

Tomorrow it will be July.

The busy pastor breathes a sigh.

No more perquisites will he get.

The cabman is bowed down in woe.

The florist sees his business go.

The tailor closes up their shops.

The modiste her tape measure drops.

The corner grocer sells no rice.

The railroad also loses their slice.

And Dm & Co. should be advised.

That business now is paralyzed.

There's one more lucky Panama hat.

He's known as the "invited guest."

For he can now save up his dough.

And not see every dollar go.

For presents that his wife picks out.

For folks he doesn't care about.

That Panama.

One day when we were looking at the other way and thinking about the baseball score, a gentleman on Monroe avenue sold us a genuine Panama hat for $15.

We don't know as we ever spent $15 more quickly in our brief young life than we did upon this occasion.

When we considered the time it took us to accumulate the $15, the time occupied in spending it seems by comparison like the infinitesimal portion of a second.

The next day it rained and the starch from the Panama rolled down over our classic features and made us feel like a bill board all stuck up and ready to receive a large lithograph of Maude Adams.

The second day our Panama hat became so pessimistic and dejected that it hung down over our eyes and down the back of our neck, and when we took it off when passing a lady it felt like a morris mushroom.

The third day it rained all day and we presented the hat to the lady who does the work around our house to use as a washrag.

The doctor always advised us to avoid all starch things. And in the future this will include Panama hats. Come on with the 11 chip lid. The worst they do it to go up to a peak.

We have better crops than a year ago. The return to protection is the way out.

The foreign commerce of the port of New York for April showed a sale of $11,000,000 in merchandise imports and a decrease of $11,000,000 in exports, as compared with the corresponding month in 1913. The March statement showed an increase of $12,000,000 in imports and a loss of the same amount in exports. Despite this heavy increase in imports the revenue receipts are only a trifle larger.

In two months America lost $23,000,000 in export business. It has not only failed to sell much abroad, but it has had exactly the same

If any benefits have come from the revision nobody has been able to discover them. The administration is watchfully waiting for the first silver lining to the cloud which has descended upon business, but no prospect in the cabinet or in congress dares venture a guess as to when it will appear.

Recall the last year of the Cleveland administration.

"I was called to the headquarters of my house and instructed to make a trip south to dispose of an enormous stock we could not move. The head of the company was placed no bottom figure on the stock, promising to fill orders at any price I accepted. I offered the best I could get, but could get no buyers. The price was no attraction, as the dealers didn't have the money. Fortunately the company was able to weather the times financially and the stock we held went off at higher prices as soon as McKimley was elected. The farmer is the last man to be harmed by lack of confidence and depression, but his profit absolutely depends upon the purchasing power of the artisans and laborers of the cities. All business in long range of the country never for long may have one line of industry prosperous and another depressed. They go up and down together. We cannot buy the 37 per cent increase in this country's imports and make them in this country too. Imports Increase In Value Since Tariff

Results Become More Disastrous As Months Come and Go.

By Winfield Jones.

Washington, D. C., July 2.—Each successive month piles up evidence that the democratic tariff is seriously crippling business. We have now more than one-half year of it, and official figures show that the reductions are not making the cost of living cheaper, but are silencing factories and enlarging the army of the unemployed.

The value of manufactures exported during the past six months is $41,000,000 less than in the corresponding period of the previous fiscal year, which means, of course, that our factories have been less busy. In the meantime the deficit in the treasury grows larger.

If any benefits have come from the revision nobody has been able to discover them. The administration is watchfully waiting for the first silver lining to the cloud which has descended upon business, but no prospect in the cabinet or in congress dares venture a guess as to when it will appear.

First Aid When In Need of Help

"Through the columns of our home town paper we were able to secure the services of a Governess, that mere money, it seems, could never replace," said a serious faced Mother of six children to a caller the past week.

"I have had such trouble," returned the caller. "I do not seem able to get in touch with the right class of help."

"Did you ever advertise?"

"Y—e—s!"

"You resent that way of getting help?"

"Yes!"

"If you could know what genuine aid the want ad page of your home town paper could be to you, all such resentment would vanish—as mist before the sun. I could hardly keep house without that page of our paper. This is no idle boast! I speak from years of experience. Give it a fair trial. You will be surprised to know how many of the best kind of people can be reached through this page of your paper; how many use it as a help to gaining a livelihood."

Did this page ever aid you? Did you ever try it?

CHICKEN FEATHERS
USED FOR BONNETS

Wings, Feathers and Even Breasts of
the Barnyard Fowl Popular Decorations of Woman's Vanity-Hats.

(By Margaret Mason)

Mary had a leghorn hen
With feathers white as spow
She made a hat of it one day
A leghorn hat you know.

New York, July 3.—The latest hat
to be abroad of the millinery fashions is the breast of a bird. It is a close fitting little cap of white feathers with one long spirally white feather stuck up in front to wave in the breeze. It is supposed to be some highfalootin sort of a white pheasant or other but looks suspiciously
like a common barnyard fowl.
It is enough so to elicit the query from Mr. Johnson, "Mr. Bones, when is a Leghorn hat not a Leghorn hat?
When it's a leghorn hen."

Anyway it is delightfully appropriate worn alike by both old hens or sprightly chickens. Though it is of feathers it is worn down on the head at a cocky angle. To be strictly up to date you've simply got to get one by fair means or foul for it's truly a bird of a bonnet.

Another new hat in the wider brim
models is the all over lace brim with crowns of either straw or velvet. These are charming topos to the filmy lingerie frock. One lovely combination is the straw hat
with shadow lace for the wide brim
and a crown of deep gold colored straw garlanded with dull white satin foliage.

Another with a black lace brim
has a soft full crown of black velvet
with a delicate pink rose, a blue fringed gentian, a gardenia, a yellow daisy and a brown pansy set about the crown at artistic intervals.

A winsome hat of pink chiffon

wreathed in white clover is ideal wreathing a winsome face wreathed in smiles. That's the unspeakable tragedy of most hats; they are always found on the wrong faces.
There really are hats to fit every face; but where a lace brimmed hat will turn an inelegant face into a study by Greuze and one of the new feathered chapeaux make a pliant young person resemble a leader of the bird ballet, one's hatchet faced great aunt nor a portly pudgy weighing three hundred pounds on the hook can affect either one of these models with anything the least bit like impunity.

Those cunning little half mast
veils that reach with scant courtesy to the tip of your nose are decidedly in favor especially when worn with the small sailor shapes and feather bonnets.

In black with a small lozenge shape single thread mesh and a bit of black dots as a finish
they are as smart indeed as the maiden who wears them and thereby dots her nose rather than her eyes
in these days of high cost of occurrences.

Shaded chiffon veils for motoring
are very lovely and jumping from head to feet the same color scheme is being sported in hostelry.

For instance, starting with a flesh tint at the temples and the newest silk stockings shade through tones of pink till they blush a deep rose in the region of the dimpled knee, the deepest tone being the highest tone as it is in these days of high cost of occurrences.

These tones are so very popular in all parts of your apparel these days
that you aren't considered at all up to date if you haven't a streak of yellow
some where about you.

Stockings with birds, beasts and members of the reptilian family disporting themselves coyly up the in-step are the very latest features for the feet. They are mostly embroidered, spangled or beaded designs but another touch is to have ones zoological handpainted.

This craze for handpainted apparel
doesn't rest merely at the feet either,
for hats, parasols, gloves and even
the crown of shoes are artistically hand-painted as well as faces.

Watching for the Lord

By REV. JAMES M. GRAY, D.D.
Dean of Moody Bible Institute
Chicago

TEXT—Watch therefore: for ye know
not what hour your Lord doth come.
Matt. 24:42

I. That for which we are to watch is the return of our Lord
and Savior Jesus Christ to this earth. We seem shut up to this thought both by
the context of the passage and the parallel places in the other Gospels.
It is, in addition,
the simplest teaching of the New Testament Scriptures generally—
witness the words
in I Thess. 1:9, 10, "Ye turned to God
from idols to serve the living and true God; and to wait for his son from heaven."

II.—The difficulty of watching is illustrated in the drowsiness of the disciples in Gethsemane—"What could ye not watch with me one hour?" (Matt. 26:40). The spirit was willing but the flesh was weak. A condition of things quite as likely in the region of spiritual truth, if one may judge
by the frequent appeals to Christians
to awake out of sleep, see Ephes.
5:14; Rom. 13:11, 12; I Cor. 15:34;
I Thess. 5:6. There are few of us who are not aware of this from actual experience, alas! As in the physical so in the spiritual sense, the longer
we have to watch the more difficult
a task it becomes.

III. The danger of not watching is seen in our Lord's warning to the church at Sardis—"If therefore thou shalt not watch, I will come to thee
as a thief" (Rev. 3:3). "The thief cometh not but for to steal, and to kill, and to destroy" (John 10:10).
This last figure is partly interpreted
by another in which Christ says:
"But and if that evil servant shall say in his heart, my Lord delayeth his coming; and shall begin to smite his fellow servants, and to eat and drink with the drunken; the Lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour
that he is not aware of, and shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth"
(Matt. 24:48-51).

IV. The accompaniments of watching are:

(1) Prayer (Mark 13:33)—To pray aright is to watch, but surely he is not watching who is not praying.
Hence "men ought always to pray" (Luke 18:1). Not that we must ever be in the external attitude of prayer,
as when the Pharisees loved to pray
standing at the corners of the streets,
but that our inward habit should be one of daily communion with God, for he heareth us always.

(2) Service—"Be ye girded about"
(Luke 12:35). See I Kings 18:46.
Prov. 31:17, 19. It is the slothful servant who is not watching. The busy servant may not have the particular thought of his Lord's return momentarily present to his mind, but it is nevertheless the underlying motive of his activity.

(3) Testimony—"your lights burning" (Luke 12:35). He who is watching for his Lord's return is speaking of it, witnessing for him. "Ye shine
as lights in the world; holding forth
the word of life" (Phil. 2:15, 16) that others may see the way of life.

V. The rewards of watching are:

(1) Escape from danger—"Watch ye therefore . . . that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass" (Luke 21:36). Compare the context and the parallel passages with I Thess. 1:5-9.

(2) Bestowal of divine honor—"Blessed are those servants, whom the Lord
when he cometh shall find watching: verily I say unto you, that he shall gird himself, and make them to sit down to meat, and will come forth and serve them" (Luke 12:37). It is,
of course, impossible to apprehend the meaning of this promised felicity (Isaiah 64:4); we simply know that our Lord's language implies an exaltation beyond our highest thought.

(3) Increase of power and opportunity—"Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his Lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season? Blessed is that servant, whom his Lord when he cometh shall find so doing."

All hail, the Coming Son of God,
He's Coming back again,
He's Coming in the Clouds of heaven,
He's Coming back again to reign!

Sinners whose sins are washed away,
Nor left a single stain,
Go, hail, the Advent of your Lord,
He's Coming back to reign!

Let every kindred, every tribe,
Free of Creation's pain,
Aloud acclaim His Welcome back,
He's Coming back to reign!

Ah! soon with all the ransomed throng,
Beholding Him once again,
We'll see the rolling cloud, and about
He's Coming back to reign!

Grasping,
People are willing to take hard knocks for nothing, but never to let ribands cheap—Ruskin.

FRECKLE-FACE

Sun and Wind Bring Out Ugly Spots,
How to Remove Easily.

Here's a chance, Miss Freckle-face,
to try a remedy for freckles with the guarantee of a reliable dealer that it will not cost you a penny unless it removes the freckles; while if it does give you a clear complexion the expense is trifling.

Simply get an ounce of ointment—
double strength from Badger Drug Co., and a few applications should show you how easy it is to rid yourself
of the homely freckles and get a beautiful complexion. Rarely is more than one ounce needed for the worst case.

Be sure to ask the druggist for the double strength ointment as this is the prescription sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

For darning stockings, use crochet
cotton. It is preferable to darning cotton, as it does not harden when washed.

Scorch marks in linen may be removed by rubbing with a fresh-cut onion, the garment being soaked in cold water after.

If paint spots stick to window panes do not use a knife to loosen them. A cloth wet in hot vinegar will clean them perfectly.

Keep some folded newspapers handy upon which to place soiled pots and pans, and save cleaning smutty rings
from the tables.

THE TABLE

Coleslaw Dressing—One egg well beaten, one tablespoon sugar, half teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, half cup vinegar. Mix together, set on stove until it reaches boiling point, stirring constantly. Add a piece of butter and pour hot over chopped or shaved cabbage.

Invalid Food—Put one tablespoon tapioca in one cup milk and stand in cold place ten minutes, then cook in double boiler fifteen minutes. Dissolve one-half teaspoon extract of beef in one cup boiling water, add to milk and tapioca. Cook a moment,
then take from fire and add hastily
an egg yolk beaten with two tablespoons cream, stir and add salt and pepper to taste.

Ginger Pudding—Three eggs, three teaspoons flour, one cup sugar, three-fourths cup sour milk, one-half cup
butter, one teaspoon baking soda,
stirred in the milk, ginger to taste.

Sponge Cake, Two Layers—Three
eggs, one cup sugar, three tablespoons cold water, one heaping cup

flour, two teaspoons baking powder.
Drop eggs in mixing bowl and beat until very light, add sugar and beat again, then add water, flour with baking powder sifted, beat. I always try this cake by dropping a small amount in a small tin and, if it drops, add more flour, as eggs vary in size. Filling: Three-fourths cup sweet cream, five teaspoons sugar,
three scant teaspoons flour; cook and flavor with lemon.

Cream of Watercress Soup—Two cups of white stock, two bunches of watercress, three tablespoonfuls of butter, two tablespoonfuls of flour,
one-half cup of milk, yolk of one egg, salt and pepper. Cut finely the leaves of the watercress; cook five minutes in two tablespoonfuls of butter, add the stock and boil five minutes. Thicken with butter and flour cooked together, add the salt and pepper. Just before serving add the milk and egg yolk slightly beaten. Serve with slices of French bread, browned in the oven.

Orange Cake—One-half cupful of butter, two cupfuls of sugar, five eggs, one pint of flour, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder,
one teaspoonful of extract of orange,
one cupful of milk. Rub the butter and sugar to a cream; add the eggs, two at a time, beating five minutes after each addition; add the flour sifted with the powder, and milk and the extract; mix into a smooth fine batter, put in a paper-lined cake tin and bake in a moderate oven thirty minutes. When cool, cover the top with the following preparation: Whip the whites of three eggs to a dry froth, then carefully mix four cupfuls of sugar, the juice, grated rind, and soft pulp, free of white pith and seeds of two sour oranges.

Little Benny's
Notebook

Today was my birthday, being 10 years old, and I didn't want to go out and ask of not wanting awl
the folks to punish me 10 times for luck, and I was standing looking out of our parlor window and Puds Simkins and Sam Krawns and Reddy Merly stopped outside awn the parvment
and stood there looking at me. Puds
Simkins hollering, Kum awn out, Benny.

After a while, I sed.

Wy dont you kum out now, sed
Sam Krawns, and I sed, I dont want to.

Aw, hes afayed, Reddy Merly
hollered, hes afayed to get punished for his birthday.

No, I'm not, cether, I sed, that shows
how much you no, and he sed, Wy
dont you kum out, then.

Because I dont want to, I sed, and Reddy and Sam and Puds awl hollered together, Yure afayed, yure afayed.

Ill sho you weathir I am or not, I
sed. And I krek got my cap and went out, wich as soon as I did the hole 3 of them ran up and started to punish me different places, counting 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 while they was doing it, but feeling as if they was teetch punishing about 100.

Hay, thats 10, thats 10, I sed, and they awl stopped punishing, and then Reddy Merly sed, Wun for good luck,
and gave me anuthir punish.

Wun for good luck, sed Sam Krawns
and Puds Simkins both together, teetch giving me anuthir punish.

Wun for bad luck, sed Reddy Merly,
and gave me anuthir punish, and Sam and Puds sed, Wun for bad luck,
and teetch gave me anuthir wun, me
saying, Hay, not so hard, not so hard.

Wun to get married, sed Reddy Merly, giving me anuthir punish, and I started to back up, saying, No sir,
no fare, yure jest making them up.

Yure Krazy, thats in it, sed Reddy Merly, and Sam and Puds both gave me anuthir punish, saying, Wun
to get married, and Reddy Merly thawt a minit and then sed, Wun to get married, and gave me anuthir wun,
and so did the nthir 2 both saying,
Wun to get married, and Reddy Merly looked as if he was jest going to think of anuthir wun, and I sed, Say, fellos, you no Puds Simkinses sissey cuzzin, Persey, well his birthday is today.

G, wixz, lets go erround and find him, no wuadir he didnt kum er-round, sed Reddy Merly, he wont have anuthir birthday in a hurry if he can help it, wixz, At it they started to run erround, thinking was going with them, on I ran back in the house fined, awn akount of I dont no wen Persey birthday is, jest saying that to keep Reddy Merly frum thinking up er more teeching for punishments, and after suppur about 10 different fellos rang the door bell and asked me to kum out. Wich I didnt.
